

Q5. What are Higher-Order Components (HOC) in React and how do they work?

A5: We can think higher order components as something similar to the higher order functions in javascript. Where, in javascript, Higher order functions are the functions that can take in a function as input or give another function as output. Similarly, in react, we have higher order component, which is a function that takes in a component and returns a new component.